- INDIRECT FREE KICK

- A punishment given by the referee for a violation of the rules by the defending team inside their own penalty area. It is most commonly given for fouls and handballs.
- A kick awarded to a player after being fouled by the opposition. The player kicks a stationary ball, with opposing players forced to stand 9.15 metres away from him. A goal may be scored directly against the opposing side without the ball having first touched another player.
- A free kick from which a goal cannot be directly scored. It can be awarded when a player commits a foul other than a penalty foul. It can be awarded for a player touching the ball for a second time after a restart, or a goalkeeper touching the ball with his hands when a team mate has deliberately passed it back to him. It is also awarded when a player from the opposing team is yellow or red carded for no specific foul or most commonly, when an opposing player has been caught offside.
